

In 322, Constantine punished a JAZYGIAN incursion into Pannonia with a punitive expedition across the Danube.
Licinius withdrew the border troops from the "Gothic bank, and in the spring of 323, a Tervingian contingent under RAUSIMOND launched an attack. Although the Goths at first ravaged Licinian territory, Constantine conducted all the countermeasures